

Granular Computing – Introduction

An important aspect in granular computing is to view granular computing as human-centric intelligent systems. Human-centered information processing was initiated with the introduction of fuzzy sets. Such insights have led to the development of the granular computing paradigm. From machine-centered to human-centered approaches is considered one of the trends in GrC research.

The basic ingredients of granular computing are granules such as subsets, classes, objects, clusters, and elements of a universe. These granules are composed of finer granules that are drawn together by distinguishability, similarity and functionality. Based on complexity, abstraction level and size, granules can be measured in different levels. The problem domain, i.e., the universe, exists at the highest and coarsest granule. Granules at the lowest level are composed of elements of the particular model that is used.
