Health Planning Lessons For The Future:

Health Planning Bonnie Lefkowitz, 1983 This book analyzes the experience of the seven year federal mandate in a way that attempts to inform future choices by decision makers Chapter 2 examines precedents to the National Health Planning and Resources Development Act traces the 1974 legislative debate and summarizes provisions of the statute and of subsequent amendments Chapter 3 reviews the literature on health planning and supply regulation Chapter 4 reviews operational theories Two normative models are developed a Model 1 approach for a centralized program whose primary purpose is cost containment and redistribution of resources and a Model 2 plan for a program emphasizing pluralism and local choice Chapter 5 argues that structural mechanisms the circumvention of states and funding based on formula rather than performance did not provide incentives to achieve objectives Chapter 6 addresses the absence of federal targets in many areas where the program was expected to have an impact Chapter 7 presents state data on intermediate outcomes such as capital spending rates and bed supply through 1980 It then relates those outcomes to some of the program and environmental characteristics identified in Chapters 5 and 6 Chapter 8 looks at implications of the analysis in this book for hospitals given several possible scenarios Chapter 9 reviews the implications of the analyses for state and local policy makers in shaping their own programs Finally it examines state and local actions during the 1982 fiscal year the beginning of the end for the federal mandate and summarizes discussions of further change by Congress in 1982 in the context of prospects for the future

Strom, 2006-01-04 The fourth edition of Pharmacoepidemiology is an outstanding and fully comprehensive textbook which will be an essential resource for all interested in the field in academia in regulatory agencies in industry and in the law Brian Strom's classic textbook continues both to reflect the increased maturation of pharmacoepidemiology and to help shape its direction Reviews of previous editions of his celebrated textbook include The book is essential reading for anyone interested in pharmacoepidemiology INTERNATIONAL JOURNAL OF EPIDEMIOLOGY an excellent textbook and a comprehensive reference which belongs in the library of every pharmaceutical manufacturer and regulator EUROPEAN JOURNAL OF PUBLIC HEALTH Advances in Research on Age in the Workplace and Retirement Cort W. Rudolph, Hannes Zacher, Susanne Scheibe, 2018-01-16 Shifts in the age composition of the workforce coupled with dynamic definitions of retirement represent important issues that influence work processes and more generally the experience of working across one's career. For example, redefinitions of careers and the changing nature of working have contributed to the emergence of distinct forms and patterns of work experiences across the prototypical work lifespan. Likewise, older individuals are increasingly delaying retirement in favor of longer-term labor force participation. The study of age and work and work and retirement by industrial work and organizational I/O psychologists and scholars of human resources management and organizational behavior. HR/OB has recently proliferated in part as a result of such trends along with the recognition that age-related processes are important indicators of various proximal (e.g., job attitudes, work behaviors, work motives, and wellbeing) and distal outcomes (e.g., sustainable employability, climates for aging, and firm performance) at various levels of abstraction in modern work environments. Recent theoretical advances have suggested that age along with individual psychological factors and various contextual influences can jointly influence work outcomes that contribute to long-term employment success, including work performance, job attitudes, work orientations, and motivations. Similar theoretical developments concerning retirement have postulated individual and contextual elements that drive success in the transition from career and work roles to non-work and leisure, as well as post-retirement bridge employment roles. In this Research Topic, we aim to curate a collection of papers that are representative of current trends and advances in thinking about and investigating the role of age in workplace processes and the changing nature of retirement. Our hope is to showcase various contemporary ideas and rigorous empirical studies as a means to inform broader thinking and to support enhanced theorizing and organizational practice regarding these processes.
