

Health Research: Essential Link to Equity in Development

Commission on Health Research for Development. 1990. Health Research: Essential Link to Equity in Development. New York: Oxford University Press. The Commission on Health Research for Development, an independent international initiative, was formed in 1987 with the aim of improving the health of people in developing countries through a focus on research, in a belief in its enormous—and, in great part, neglected—power to accomplish that goal. Over 24 months, the Commission reviewed information, implemented a survey, commissioned papers and case studies, and convened regional workshops. The Commission had a multinational, multidisciplinary membership, and its work was supported by a diverse group of 16 donors from Europe, North America, Asia, and Latin America. The report has three sections. The first reviews inequities in health and argues for health as both a beneficiary of and a spur to development. The second presents survey and country study findings related to the financing, focus, location, and promotion of health research. The third presents conclusions and recommendations for action.

OBJECTIVE

- To analyze health research as a tool for health and development, both for applying solutions already available and for generating new knowledge to tackle problems for which solutions are not yet known.

CONCLUSIONS

- There is a gross mismatch between the burden of disease, whose occurrence is overwhelmingly greater in the developing world, and investment in health research, which is overwhelmingly focused on
