Green Hell Treasure:

The Green Hell Treasure Robert L. Fish, 1971 Behold the Black Caiman Lucas Bessire, 2014-10-24 Behold the Black Caiman by anthropologist Lucas Bessire is a haunting ethnography based on a decade of fieldwork among a group of Ayoreo speaking tribes in the Gran Chaco the largest forested area in South America after the Amazon Bessire shows that far from being untouched noble savages most of the Ayoreo tribes are struggling to survive on the margins of industrialized society as cattle ranches encroach on the dense wilderness that they once called home As one of the poorest and most marginalized indigenous groups in the region the Ayoreo endure unfathomable levels of violence and discrimination Faced with such brutality the Ayoreo believe that survival within modernity requires a radical transformation including the abandonment of nearly all of the practices that count as authorized native culture in Latin America Bessire argues that their attitude is not evidence of contamination or loss as many anthropologists NGOs and state representatives would have it but is rather a profound moral response to their desperate situation The book thus aims to revise the anthropology and history of Ayoreo speaking people and indigenous people in general who have long been seen as the ultimate primitives outside the State market and history Written in the tradition of classic texts such as Chronicle of the Guayaki Indians and Tristes Tropiques the book tells a tragic story of catastrophic violence that is urgently relevant to identity politics both within Latin America and beyond

Lost Treasure Robert G. Ferguson, 1957 Sequels Janet G. Husband, Jonathan F. Husband, 2009 A guide to series fiction lists popular series identifies novels by character and offers guidance on the order in which to read unnumbered series

The Great Detectives Otto Penzler, 2012-08-28 The origins of literature's finest crime fighters told by their creators themselves Their names ring out like gunshots in the dark of a back alley crime fighters of a lost era whose heroic deeds will never be forgotten They are men like Lew Archer Pierre Chambrun Flash Casey and the Shadow They are women like Mrs North and the immortal Nancy Drew These are detectives and they are some of the only true heroes the twentieth century ever knew In this classic volume Otto Penzler presents essays written by the authors who created these famous characters We learn how Ed McBain killed and resurrected the hero of the 87th Precinct how international agent Quiller wrote his will and how Dick Tracy first announced that crime does not pay Some of these heroes may be more famous than others but there is not one whom you wouldn't like on your side in a courtroom a shootout or an old fashioned barroom brawl

Families of the Forest Allen Johnson, 2003-04-15 The idea of a family level society discussed and disputed by anthropologists for nearly half a century assumes moving breathing form in Families of the Forest According to Allen Johnson's deft ethnography the Matsigenka people of southeastern Peru cannot be understood or appreciated except as a family level society the family level of sociocultural integration is for them a lived reality Under ordinary circumstances the largest social units are individual households or small extended family hamlets In the absence of such tribal features as villages territorial defense and warfare local or regional leaders and public ceremonials these people put a premium on economic self reliance control of aggression within intimate family settings and freedom to believe and act in their own perceived self interest Johnson shows how the Matsigenka whose home is the Amazon rainforest are able to meet virtually all their material needs with the skills and labor available to the individual household They try to raise their children to be independent and self reliant yet in control of their emotional impulsive natures so that they can get along in intimate cooperative living groups Their belief that self centered impulsiveness is dangerous and self control is fulfilling anchors their moral framework which is expressed in abundant stories and myths Although as Johnson points out such people are often described in negative terms as lacking in features of social and cultural complexity he finds their small community lifestyle efficient rewarding and very well adapted to their environment
