

Food insecurity and climate change

Food insecurity Food insecurity is a global problem, affecting over 800 million people worldwide. It is a state of being hungry, or having limited or no access to food, or having limited or no access to nutritious food. It is a complex issue, involving a range of factors, including poverty, lack of access to land, and lack of access to services.	Climate change Climate change is a global problem, affecting the entire planet. It is a result of the greenhouse effect, which is caused by the release of greenhouse gases into the atmosphere. These gases trap heat, leading to a rise in global temperatures. This can lead to a range of impacts, including sea level rise, more extreme weather, and changes in the distribution of food crops.	Water Water is a vital resource, and its availability is essential for life. Climate change is expected to lead to a significant reduction in water availability in many parts of the world. This is due to a combination of factors, including a reduction in snowmelt, a reduction in rainfall, and a reduction in the amount of water that is stored in the ground.	Deforestation and land use change Deforestation and land use change are major drivers of climate change. The release of carbon dioxide from the burning of fossil fuels, and the release of carbon dioxide from the clearing of land for agriculture, are both significant sources of greenhouse gases. Deforestation also leads to a loss of biodiversity, and a loss of the ability of ecosystems to absorb carbon dioxide.	Energy sources Energy is a vital resource, and its availability is essential for life. Climate change is expected to lead to a significant reduction in energy availability in many parts of the world. This is due to a combination of factors, including a reduction in wind speeds, a reduction in the amount of sunlight that reaches the ground, and a reduction in the amount of water that is available for hydroelectric power.	Food security and climate change Food security and climate change are closely linked. Climate change is expected to lead to a significant reduction in food security in many parts of the world. This is due to a combination of factors, including a reduction in the amount of food that is available, a reduction in the quality of food, and a reduction in the ability of people to access food.

Rural Commercial Capital Barbara Harriss-White, 2008 Agricultural performance is influenced by agricultural commodity markets However the importance of these markets has largely been ignored by agricultural policymakers and mainstream economists This pioneering study covering both the pre and the post liberalization periods and West Bengal's transformation from a seriously deficit to a surplus state conceives of the post harvest sector as a system of markets It shows how while West Bengal enjoyed the results of a reformed agrarian system the market system remained unreformed until recently The book sheds light on the role and importance of distribution and commodity markets in shaping and spreading the benefits of higher productivity across society An original analysis of the regulation of markets by institutions of collective action and social identity as well as by the state the book discusses a regulatory policy that could be adopted by any government irrespective of its ideology Barbara Harriss White's quarter century of field work in West Bengal has yielded new insights into the political economy where ethno cultural networks and informal finance have led to a polarization of agro commercial power on the one hand and a proliferation of livelihoods for small traders in the post harvest market system on the other Challenging many of the claims of orthodox political economy this well researched volume offers a new interpretation of rural development over three decades of communist rule

Climate Change, Agriculture and Rural Livelihoods in Developing Countries Keshav Lall

Maharjan, Niraj Prakash Joshi, 2013-05-13 This book is about climate change and its relation to agriculture and rural livelihoods. It starts by providing a basic understanding of climate change science followed by the relation of climate change to agriculture, the impact of which is discussed based on the particular impact of climate change on plant and animal physiology. The book further discusses the inclusion of the agriculture sector in various international climate change negotiations. It also reviews the cost and opportunities for agricultural projects through international climate change regimes, specifically the Clean Development Mechanism under the Kyoto Protocol. With this background, the book finally proceeds to an explanation of the methodologies used to assess the impact of climate change on agriculture and empirically discusses its impact on agriculture and rural livelihoods in Nepal. The Hindu Kush Himalaya Assessment Philippus

Wester, Arabinda Mishra, Aditi Mukherji, Arun Bhakta Shrestha, 2019-01-04 This open access volume is the first comprehensive assessment of the Hindu Kush Himalaya (HKH) region. It comprises important scientific research on the social, economic, and environmental pillars of sustainable mountain development and will serve as a basis for evidence-based decision making to safeguard the environment and advance people's well-being. The compiled content is based on the collective knowledge of over 300 leading researchers, experts, and policymakers brought together by the Hindu Kush Himalayan Monitoring and Assessment Programme (HIMAP) under the coordination of the International Centre for Integrated Mountain Development (ICIMOD). This assessment was conducted between 2013 and 2017 as the first of a series of monitoring and assessment reports under the guidance of the HIMAP Steering Committee. Eklavya Sharma (ICIMOD), Atiq Raman (Bangladesh), Yuba Raj Khatriwada (Nepal), Linxiu Zhang (China), Surendra Pratap Singh (India), Tandong Yao (China), and David Molden (ICIMOD and Chair of the HIMAP SC). This First HKH Assessment Report consists of 16 chapters which comprehensively assess the current state of knowledge of the HKH region, increase the understanding of various drivers of change and their impacts, address critical data gaps, and develop a set of evidence-based and actionable policy solutions and recommendations. These are linked to nine mountain priorities for the mountains and people of the HKH, consistent with the Sustainable Development Goals. This book is a must-read for policy makers, academics, and students interested in this important region and an essentially important resource for contributors to global assessments such as the IPCC reports.

The Indian Journal of Agricultural Economics, 1946 Vols include Proceedings of the conference of the Indian Society of Agricultural Economics. Climate Change and Gendered Livelihoods in Bangladesh Sajal Roy, 2021-11-07 Globally, climate-induced disasters have been impacting marginalised communities' lives, livelihoods, and gendered relations. This book explores the effects of Cyclone Aila as a result of climate change in 2009 on the rural livelihoods and gendered relations of two ethnically distinct forest communities: Munda, an indigenous group, and Shora, a Muslim group dwelling near the Sundarbans Forest in Bangladesh. Examining the cyclone's medium to long-term impacts on livelihoods and comparative aspects of gendered relations between these two contrasting communities, this book addresses a gap in current critical development studies It adopts an ethnographic research design and analyses the alterations to livelihood activities and reconfiguration of gender relations within the Munda and Shora communities since 2009 The study primarily contends that post Aila livelihoods and gendered relations have been substantially transformed in both communities making the case that the improvement of local infrastructure as an important part of the geographical location has noticeably progressed the living conditions and livelihoods of some members of the Munda and Shora communities Connecting climate induced changes with the construction and alteration of gendered livelihood patterns the book will be of interest to a wide range of academics in the fields of Asian Studies Sociology of Environment Social Anthropology Human Geography Gender and Cultural Studies Human Geography Disaster Management and Forestry and Environmental Science World Agricultural Economics and Rural Sociology Abstracts ,2000 Food Systems and the Human Environment in Eastern India: Food insecurity, climate variability and community perceptions Boudhayan Chattopadhyay,1991 Economic and Political Weekly ,1994-04 Indian Books in Print ,2003 Development of Nutritional Science in India B.
