Efferent Organization And The Integration Of Behavior:

Efferent Organization and The Integration of Behavior Jack Maser, 2012-12-02 Efferent Organization and the Integration of Behavior is a nine chapter text that discusses the hypotheses and alternative conceptualizations of efferent mechanisms as well as the neural basis of patterned movement The opening chapters examine several behavioral categories the neural mediation of movement and the distinction between efferent response and efferent motor processes These chapters also present a revised theory of the role of the motor system in physiological regulation and neural metabolic integration in energy production for behavior These topics are followed by considerable chapters devoted to efferent organization of specific brain sections including the motor cortex pyramidal system globus pallidus substantia nigra diencephalon hippocampus and neocortex This text also deals with the instrumental conditioning based on alimentary or food reinforcements A chapter discusses the constraints on theoretical interpretations of neuroanatomical circuitry functions of noradrenergic and cholinergic brain systems The concluding chapter describes the relationship between the motor integration systems of extrapyramidal structures and the motivational systems of limbic structures This chapter also looks into the anatomical organization of self stimulation and the microelectrode data which delineate the response of single neurons to stimulation at hypothalamic self stimulation sites

The Human Nervous System George Paxinos, Juergen K Mai, 2004-01-19 This long awaited update of the classic The Human Nervous System stands as an impressive survey of our knowledge of the brain spinal cord and peripheral nervous system The book has been completely redone and brought up to date An impressive and respected cast of international authors have contributed 37 chapters on topics ranging from Brain Evolution all phases of Brain Development to all areas of the adult brain and peripheral pathways along with careful descriptions of the spinal cord and peripheral nervous system brainstem and cerebellum The Human Nervous System Second Edition will again serve as the gold standard providing a one stop source of up to date information about our knowledge of the human nervous system This second edition of the standard reference on the human nervous system is extensively and completely revised and updated from the 1990 first edition Written by the leading researchers many chapters have been completely rewritten new chapters have been added A new section on Evolution and Development provides a broader perspective and all chapters include references and perspectives to neurological disease

The Hippocampus Robert Isaacson, Karl H. Pribram, 1975 These books are the result of a conviction held by the editors authors and publisher that the time is appropriate for assembling in one place information about functions of the hippocampus derived from many varied lines of research Because of the explosion of research into the anatomy physiology chemistry and behavioral aspects of the hippocampus some means of synthesis of the results from these lines of research was called for We first thought of a conference In fact officials in the National Institute of Mental Health suggested we organize such a conference on the hippocampus but after a few tentative steps in this direction interest at the federal level waned probably due to the decreases in federal support for research in the basic health sciences so keenly felt in recent years. However, the editors also had come to the view that conferences are mainly valuable to the participants. The broad range of students of all ages of brain-behavior relations do not profit from conference proceedings unless the proceedings are subsequently published. Furthermore, conferences dealing with the functional character of organ systems approached from many points of view are most successful after participants have become acquainted with each other's work. Therefore, we believe that a book is the best format for disseminating information and that its publication can be the stimulus for many future conferences.

Aging is one of the most universal and inevitable social and scientific challenges confronting man. The lives of all multicellular organisms begin with conception, extend through phases of development, maturity, senescence, and finally end in death. Man is no exception but has the unique feature of a complex brain. It plays an integrative role in adaptation to the physical and social environments through reflexes, conditioning, and more complex forms of learning. The brain is a repository for both inherited and acquired information. With the development of speech and the formation of symbolic language, the human brain has made it possible to transmit information culturally horizontal to other members of society in addition to genetic vertical transmission to progeny. This horizontal transmission, which has reached its highest form in man, is a powerful extension of genetic transmission. The brain may provide man all that is of importance in life. It has played a key role in the evolution of life by maintaining and extending the life span. Many mental or intellectual capacities of man reach a peak in early adulthood, remain relatively constant throughout maturity, and then appear to decline during senescence. Behaviorally, there appears to be a decrease in sensory learning and motor functions with aging in all mammalian species. As integrated adaptive control systems, the brain and neuroendocrines have been closely associated with the homeostatic adaptation to environmental challenges throughout the life span. Subcortical Mechanisms and Sensorimotor Activities Tamas L.
