Frontier Landscape:

The Frontier Landscape Patrick A. Miller, 1982      Frontier's End Robert Gish, 1988-01-01 The western frontier was officially pronounced closed in 1890 the year Harvey Fergusson was born in Albuquerque He spent his life reopening it in a series of novels stretching from the classic Wolf Song to the belatedly acclaimed Grant of Kingdom and The Conquest of Don Pedro In this first full biography and critical study Robert F Gish sees Fergusson as a modern frontiersman in love with the outdoors women and writing The scion of New Mexico family prominent in business and politics Fergusson moved restlessly from one new frontier to another always seeking to recreate in his life and work the adventure and freedom enjoyed by his ancestors After a strenuous open air life by the Rio Grande he went east to raise a ruckus as a journalist and then to Hollywood as a screenwriter all the while testing his sexual mettle Finally freelance writing was the only frontier available to one of his imaginative energy Fergusson s early novel Wolf Song is still considered one of the best ever written about the mountain man Gish shows the writer embracing the gloriously masculine and atavistic role of a lone rider even as he scorned the worship of the primitive Fergusson struck up a friendship with H L Mencken and Theodore Dreiser who influenced his literary style and played a part in the development of Taos and Santa Fe as meccas for artists and writers Based on extensive research including Fergusson s diaries and correspondence Frontier s End goes a long way toward reconciling the regional with the mainstream in American literature in the person of a serious novelist whose importance is finally being recognized

Carolina's Historical Landscapes Linda France Stine, 1997 Featuring contributions by leading scholars this book goes beyond conventional archaeological studies by placing the description and interpretation of specific sites in the wider context of the landscape that connects them to one another      Bracket 3 Lola Sheppard, 2022-03-18 Bracket at Extremes includes critical articles and unpublished design projects that investigate architecture infrastructure and technology as they operate in conditions of imbalance negotiate tipping points and test limit states We are conditioned as designers of the built environment towards the organization of people programs and movement Indeed the history of modern urbanism architecture and building science has been predicated on an anti entropic notion of programmatic and social order But are there scenarios in which a state of extremity or imbalance is productive Bracket at Extremes seeks to understand what new spatial orders emerge in this liminal space How might it be leveraged as an opportunity for invention What are the limits of wilderness and control of the natural and artificial the real and the virtual What new landscapes networks and urban models might emerge in the wake of destabilized economic social and environmental conditions      Social Orders and Social Landscapes Charles W. Hartley, Laura M. Popova, Adam T. Smith, 2021-02-10 Social Orders and Social Landscapes marks a new direction in research for Eurasian archaeology that focuses on how people lived in their local environment and interacted with their near and distant neighbours rather than on overarching comparisons of archaeological culture complexes Stemming from the 2005 University of Chicago Eurasian Archaeology Conference the papers collected here reflect this new research agenda though the way in which each author addressed the theme of the conference and thus the book was strikingly varied This diversity arises out of the field's intellectual flux driven by the principled engagement of the rich analytical traditions of the Soviet CIS Anglo American and European schools Despite the variability in approaches and subject matter several key themes emerged 1 the reinterpretation culture categories by examining particular aspects of social life 2 the role social memory plays in the production of landscape and place 3 the influence of the built environment on societies and 4 the ways in which economic considerations affect social orders and landscapes The result is a book that helps to re-image Eurasia as a complex landscape fragmented by historically contingent and shifting ecological and social boundaries rather than a bounded mosaic of culture areas or environmental zones Scholarly research on Eurasia was transformed by the collapse of the Soviet Union in 1991 Entire areas and fields of research became accessible to European and American scholars for the first time resulting in the emergence of new centers specializing in primary field investigations throughout the vast politically transformed landmass of Eurasia One such center is the University of Chicago that has recently sponsored two large international conferences on Eurasian archaeology Social Orders and Social Landscapes is the product of the second Chicago conference held in spring 2005 The editors of the volume should be proud of their efforts that have resulted in such a broad ranging and prompt publication The articles encompass a variety of disciplinary perspectives including archaeology history art history palynology and zooarchaeology extend chronologically from Neolithic and Bronze Age times to the formation of national identity in Turkey in the early 20th century and range geographically from Europe to China Several articles reconstruct basic subsistence activities others analyze distinctive settlement types and political and cultural frontiers including the assimilation and emergence of new self defined ethnic groups and the selective adoption of new systems of religious belief What unites this diverse collection is their consistent emphasis on the social construction of reality and the production of social landscapes and memories that altered perceptions of the physical world and mediated the practical activities that here have been convincingly reconstructed from the archaeological record In so doing rigid stereotypes are questioned and novel interpretations persuasively advanced Early Bronze Age pastoralism on the south Russian steppes did not consist exclusively of herding animals nor was it combined as it was later in the Iron Age with the pursuit of agriculture rather D Anthony and D Brown suggest that at least in the Samara river valley the herding of animals occurred along side the intensive gathering of wild nutritionally rich plants The kalas of ancient Chorasmia are not cities nor even proto urban formations but rather are large heavily fortified enclosures meant to repel attacks of armed nomadic cavalry They represent a continuation of a distinct Central Asian settlement pattern that began in the Bronze Age and that formed the center of a landscape divided into contiguous self contained oases The Mongols not only herded livestock but also farmed fished hunted and traded throughout the vast area that they had conquered uniting most of Eurasia into a single economically integrated system New perspectives proliferate throughout this richly detailed and extremely broad ranging collected volume Phil Kohl Professor of Anthropology and the Kathryn W Davis Professor of Slavic Studies at Wellesley College Social Orders and Social Landscapes is a stimulating addition to the still small literature in English making the rich datasets from the archaeology of Eurasia widely accessible to Western scholars The authors of the eighteen chapters analyze data from China to the Mediterranean from the fourth millennium BCE through the fourteenth century CE with the tools of art and architectural history text analysis paleobotany and paleozoology and anthropological theory among others The product of a conference at the University of Chicago this book fulfils the goal of the graduate student organizers to apply interdisciplinary approaches to understanding the archaeology and history of the Eurasian landmass in local terms through a focus on how people lived in their local environments In the decade and a half since the end of the Soviet Union scholarly communication has broadened and the mutual influences have stimulated many new and thought provoking views on the Eurasian past This book is an exemplary product of the new scholarly discourse Karen S Rubinson Research Scholar

Department of Anthropology Barnard College Columbia University Transnational American Spaces Tina Powell, Patricia Sagasti Suppes, 2022-06-07 As people migrate they face the need to create a stable space within a disconcertingly unfamiliar environment This experience of creating new spaces opens opportunities for positive transcultural connections however these opportunities can also serve as the disciplining of the migrant body This text focuses on the movement of bodies in transnational communities and the formation of domestic and communal spaces that provide respite from migratory paths negotiate transnational relationships or establish a new home In doing so we explore literary texts that question challenge and deepen our understanding of the experience of migration through the use of space and place The texts in question examine three levels of transnational spaces intimate spaces such as family personal growth or sexuality inherited spaces reflected in generational conflicts religious identity and inherited histories and national spaces that look at issues of broader national identities The texts we examine engage with transnational communities within the United States and the ways in which narratives reimagine new space to negotiate change and create new norms These narratives can sometimes bridge both cultures or can sometimes result in a violent sense of displacement Each chapter problematizes a different aspect of transcultural adaptation and the geographic ties of each community focus reflect the multicultural reality of the U S with connections to Asia the Caribbean Europe the Middle East and Latin America Old Land, New Landscapes Chris Williams, 2015-01-28 Old Land New Landscapes is the story of a farming community fighting to rehabilitate land degraded by more than a century of farming Chris Williams tells of the trials and triumphs of the Sutherland family and other volunteers based around Peak Hill in central western New South Wales as they set out to restore native vegetation and create the Genaren Hill wildlife sanctuary This authoritative and engaging book is essential reading for farmers and Landcare scheme participants but will also appeal to those who enjoy reading about the Australian bush and the resourceful characters who live there Discovered Lands, Invented Pasts Jules David Prown, Buffalo Bill Historical Center, William fiction one that also greatly enriches our understanding of western history and its impact on our collective imagination Detailing the overlap of science fiction and western fiction especially relating to their mutual interest in and concerns about frontier expansionism he reveals an unsuspected common ground that informs the writings of both camps Reviewing the work of many Hugo and Nebula Award winners as well as drawing upon popular film and television series like the Buck Rogers serials Abbott s study journeys across the far reaches of science fiction s universe Archaeology of Frontiers & Boundaries Stanton W.

Cronon, Yale University. Art Gallery, Nancy K. Anderson, Thomas Gilcrease Institute of American History and Art, Susan Prendergast Schoelwer, 1992-01-01 A common theme of western American art is the transformation of the land through European American exploration and resettlement In this book the authors look at western American art of the past three centuries re evaluating it from the perspectives of history art history and American studies Landscape Architecture, 1982 IFLA Yearbook, 1990 Hunger for the Wild Michael L. Johnson, 2007 Americans have had an enduring yet ambivalent obsession with the West as both a place and a state of mind Michael L Johnson considers how that obsession originated how it has determined attitudes toward and activities in the West and how it has changed over the centuries Promised Lands David M. Wrobel, 2002 Whether seen as a land of opportunity or as paradise lost the American West took shape in the nation s imagination with the help of those who wrote about it but two groups who did much to shape that perception are often overlooked today Promoters trying to lure settlers and investors to the West insisted that the frontier had already been tamed that the only frontiers remaining were those of opportunity Through posters pamphlets newspaper articles and other printed pieces these boosters literally imagined places into existence by depicting backwater areas as settled culturally developed regions where newcomers would find none of the hardships associated with frontier life Quick on their heels some of the West s original settlers had begun publishing their reminiscences in books and periodicals and banding together in pioneer societies to sustain their conception of frontier heritage Their selective memory focused on the savage wilderness they had tamed exaggerating the past every bit as much as promoters exaggerated the present Although they are generally seen today as unscrupulous charlatans and tellers of tall tales David Wrobel reveals that these promoters and reminiscers were more significant than their detractors have suggested By exploring the vast literature produced by these individuals from the end of the Civil War through the 1920s he clarifies the pivotal impact of their works on our vision of both the historic and mythic West In examining their role in forging both sense of place within the West and the nation s sense of the West as a place Wrobel shows that these works were vital to the process of identity formation among westerners themselves and to the construction of a West in the national imagination Wrobel also sheds light on the often elitist sometimes racist legacies of both groups through their characterizations of Native Americans African Americans Mexican Americans and Asian Americans In the era Wrobel examines promoters painted the future of each western place as if it were already present while the old timers preserved the past as if it were still present But as he also demonstrates that West has not really changed much promoters still tout its promise while old timers still try to preserve their selective memories Even relatively recent western residents still tap into the region s mythic pioneer heritage as they form their attachments to place Promised Lands shows us that the West may well move into the twenty first century but our images of it are forever rooted in the nineteenth The Bookman, 1908 The Boy Travellers in Mexico Thomas Wallace Knox, 1890 The New Russia Dorothy Thompson, 1928 Frontiers Past and Future Carl Abbott, 2006 Abbott offers a fruitful new way to read science
