Farm Commodity Programs William Lin,1981 Farm Commodity Programs Library of Congress. Congressional Research Service,2005 Provides an overview of farm commodity programs including statutorily required support treatment of specific commodities and policy discussion Details the roles of USDA and CCC in administering the programs under the Federal Agriculture Improvement and Reform Act Farm Commodity Programs David Gale Johnson,1973 Farm Commodity Programs Remy Jurenas,1995 The Distributional Implications of Agricultural Commodity Programs Russell M. Lidman,1972 Farm Program Alternatives Luther G. Tweeten,1963 Farm Commodity Programs in the 2008 Farm Bill Library of Congress. Congressional Research Service,2008 Describes farm commodity program provisions in P L 110 246 the Food Conservation and Energy Act of 2008 for major crops including wheat corn cotton rice and soybeans Discusses important policy developments in the new farm bill compared to prior law Farm Commodity Programs William Lin,United States. Department of Agriculture. Economics and Statistics Service,1981 Farm Commodity Policy ,2007 Farm commodity programs represent the heart of U S farm policy The 2002 farm bill P L 107 171 establishes farm income support and commodity price support programs for the 2002 2007 crop years About 25 commodities representing a third of gross farm sales qualify for support Five crops corn wheat cotton rice and soybeans account for over 85% of government commodity payments to farmers The 110th Congress will be making decisions about a new farm bill and the Administration has issued its own recommendation Planting flexibility H R 1371 payment limits and revenue counter cyclical payments are key issues currently The question is whether to continue with the current system or adopt different approaches in response to federal spending constraints economic conditions legal challenges from international trade agreements and equity considerations This report will be updated Profile of Farms Benefiting from the 1982 Farm Commodity Programs Frederick J. Nelson,1989 Farm Commodity Policy ,2007 Farm Commodity Programs Jim Monke,2006 Commodity support provisions in the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 P L 107 171 the 2002 farm bill include three primary types of payments 1 annual direct payments unrelated to production or prices 2 counter cyclical payments which are triggered when prices are below statutorily determined target prices and 3 marketing assistance loans that offer interim financing and if prices fall below statutorily determined loan prices additional income support This report describes the payments for wheat feed grains cotton rice oilseeds peanuts wool mohair honey and certain other small grains These commodities have similar rules and generally account for about two thirds of USDA farm commodity program outlays

United States Farm Commodity Programs and Land Use Ian Hardie,Peter J. Parks,2020 We estimate the impact of government payments on United States land use using county level data from the National Resources Inventory and the Census of Agriculture in 1987 1992 and 1997 Although payments were made under decoupled support programs effects on land use are found to be significant On average for the years studied our simulations indicate that United States cropland acreage would have been 89 million acres 22% less if program payments had been reduced to half their observed level holding market prices of commodities constant Percentage reductions are largest in marginal crop producing areas of the nation

Farm Commodity Programs and Their Effects United States. Department of Agriculture. Commodity Economics Division,1990

Farm Commodity Programs Geoffrey S. Becker,2005

Farm Commodity Programs ,2006

Commodity support provisions in the Farm Security and Rural Investment Act of 2002 P L 107 171 the 2002 farm bill include three primary types of payments 1 annual direct payments unrelated to production or prices 2 counter cyclical payments which are triggered when prices are below statutorily determined target prices and 3 marketing assistance loans that offer interim financing and if prices fall below statutorily determined loan prices additional income support These programs provide a safety net to protect farmers from falling prices and raise farm income levels These policies however may contribute to world trade distortions raise land prices and costs of production and concentrate benefits among certain commodities and producers This report describes the payments for wheat feed grains cotton rice oilseeds peanuts wool mohair honey and certain other small grains These commodities have similar rules and generally account for about two thirds of USDA farm commodity program outlays Examples are provided to illustrate how the payment mechanisms work To receive payments an individual must share in the risk of producing a crop and comply with conservation and planting flexibility rules Each commodity program has an annual payment limit per farm or individual but these limits in practice are not constraining because some large farms can be reorganized to meet the rules or marketing loans can be repaid in such a way as to avoid the limits Total actual and estimated payments for these commodities under the 2002 farm bill FY2003 05 actual and FY2006 08 estimated range from 6 7 billion in FY2004 to an estimated 14 4 billion in FY2006 Direct payments are nearly constant at 5 2 billion annually Counter cyclical payments may range from less than 1 billion in FY2004 to an estimated 5 1 billion in FY2007 Total marketing loan benefits may range from 0 6 billion in FY2004 to an estimated 5 3 billion in FY2006 By commodity feed grains primarily corn clearly receive most of the total support followed more distantly by cotton wheat oilseeds primarily soybeans and rice This report will be updated if substantial changes occur
