The Evolving Science of Grassland Improvement L. R. Humphreys,1997-02-20 An authoritative review of the past present and future of this important agricultural ecosystem

Land Change Science, Political Ecology, and Sustainability Christian Brannstrom,Jacqueline M. Vadjunec,2014-01-23 Recent claims regarding convergence and divergence between land change science and political ecology as approaches to the study of human environment relationships and sustainability science are examined and analyzed in this innovative volume Comprised of 11 commissioned chapters as well as introductory and concluding synthesis chapters it advances the two fields by proposing new conceptual and methodological approaches toward integrating land change science and political ecology The book also identifies areas of fundamental difference and disagreement between fields These theoretical contributions will help a generation of young researchers refine their research approaches and will advance a debate among established scholars in geography land use studies and sustainability science that has been developing since the early 2000s At an empirical level case studies focusing on sustainable development are included from Africa Central and South America and Southeast Asia The specific topics addressed include tropical deforestation swidden agriculture mangrove forests gender and household issues

Grassland Food Chains Buffy Silverman,2010-09 Explores the species and food chains within a grassland habitat and discusses why these food chains need to be protected

Science, Society and the Environment Michael Dove,Daniel Kammen,2015-04-24 In an era when pressing environmental problems make collaboration across the divide between sciences and arts and humanities essential this book presents the results of a collaborative analysis by an anthropologist and a physicist of four key junctures between science society and environment The first focuses on the systemic bias in science in favour of studying esoteric subjects as distinct from the mundane subjects of everyday life the second is a study of the fire climax grasslands of Southeast Asia especially those dominated by Imperata cylindrica sword grass the third reworks the idea of moral economy applying it to relations between environment and society and the fourth focuses on the evolution of the global discourse of the culpability and responsibility of climate change The volume concludes with the insights of an interdisciplinary perspective for the natural and social science of sustainability It argues that failures of conservation and development must be viewed systemically and that mundane topics are no less complex than the more esoteric subjects of science The book addresses a current blind spot within the academic research community to focusing attention on the seemingly common and mundane beliefs and practices that ultimately play the central role in the human interaction with the environment This book will benefit students and scholars from a number of different academic disciplines including conservation and environment studies development studies studies of global environmental change anthropology geography sociology politics and science and technology studies
