It is critical to understand where the numbers come from when operating an apparatus pump.

Odds are, your fire department has a “rule of thumb” regarding pump pressures for pre-connected hose lines or lines that are used more often. Therefore, you don't have to remember or try to use these formulas at a fire. Unless the hose lay is different from what you are used to, a “rule of thumb” should work fine.

BE AWARE ...

If you don't know these formulas, you will one day need them because of a different hose lay, and it will happen at the worst possible time.
