TRAFFICKERS' £3K EBAY BOAT

Exclusive: Gang who smuggled 18 Albanians across Channel bought inflatable online just 4 days earlier

By Claire Duffin, Emily Kent Smith, Ian Drury and Ross Parker

A GANG of people smugglers accused of sneaking Albanian migrants into a British seaside village bought one of their boats on eBay.

Five men went to a private seller's house in the New Forest, Hampshire, last week and paid £3,000 in cash for the inflatable craft called Antares.

They told the owner that they wanted the speedboat - which is a type once popular with the Royal Navy for anti-piracy missions - for fishing trips.

But four days later it was found abandoned on the beach at Dymchurch in Kent, after a botched attempt to bring 18 Albanian migrants into the country.

On Monday evening, the boat was seized by Border Force officers and taken away for examination. It is now suspected of being involved in the smuggling operation bringing migrants across the Channel, which has triggered a crisis over Britain's border security.

A source with knowledge of the vessel - an ex-Sea Rider - said the model has long been favoured by smugglers because of its speed and size.

It is thought the Antares was involved by the gang in an attempt to rescue the migrants after a second boat began sinking in the early hours of Monday as it approached the shore.

The 18 Albanians said to have paid £30,000
