Experimental Habitat Fragmentation and Simulation of Landscape Dynamics in the Boreal Mixedwood S. G. Cumming,1995 Presents a study of about 74 000 square kilometres of mixedwood boreal forest in northern Alberta with the main objective of acquiring synthesising and applying information on the response of the forest to broad scale timber harvesting Study methodology involved analysis of landscape patterns and species specific population attributes in the area followed by development of a model of landscape dynamics including components of vegetation zonation successional change and disturbance regimes notably fire The model includes a new non spatial fires history model developed from provincial fire history data Simulation of the effects of logging in the study area was performed by TARDIS a specially developed spatial harvest schedule simulator A sub project of the study involved an experimental study of how forest fragmentation induced by timber harvesting affects the community and population dynamics on non game birds in aspen dominated forest In the experiment fragments of old mixedwood forest from one to 100 hectares in size were isolated from adjacent forest and bird populations documented before and after isolation A correlation matrix revealed relationships between bird species densities and habitat variables Concludes with a systematic comparison of three spatial forest inventory data sets which revealed discrepancies in estimated forest composition
