Currie,Duncan Thomas,1998

Recent research on Head Start an enriched preschool program for poor children that effects on test scores fade out more quickly for black children than for white children This paper uses data from the 1988 wave of the National Educational Longitudinal Survey to show that black children who attended Head Start go on to attend schools of worse quality than other black children in the sense that they attend schools in which most children have worse test scores We do not see any similar pattern among white children indicating that on average children attend schools similar to those attended by other white children Moreover stratify by school type we find that gaps in test scores between Head Start and other children are very similar for blacks and whites These patterns suggest that the effects of Head Start may fade out more rapidly among black students than among whites at least in part because black Head Start children are more likely to subsequently attend bad schools Popular Science Monthly ,1928 Head Start Robert Fisher,1999 Showing parents what to do in the home to facilitate creativity and success in their child s development this guide to bringing out the best in kids provides ways to help cultivate intelligence Included are techniques for improving brainpower literacy numeracy observational skills musical awareness and physical dexterity Ideas for activities to expand a child s mind and ways to encourage natural curiosity problem solving skills and self confidence are also featured Evaluating Social Science Research Paul C. Stern,1979 We often decide what to believe and what to question on the basis of a simple rule of thumb like believe the trustworthy source or trust the expert Sometimes however reliable and well informed sources support both sides of the controversy Whom are we to trust How can we make a decision on the issue at hand The second edition of Evaluating Social Science Research provides methods for thinking critically about claims of factual knowledge and drawing appropriate conclusions The authors have added new sections to the book to reflect the new developments in the field since the appearance of the first edition sixteen years ago Included is an expanded discussion of observational method that addresses the issues of validity that are now more clearly understood There is an explicit discussion of quasi experimental research design including an added distinction between equivalent group and nonequivalent group experiments New explanations of the logic of multiple regression analysis casual modeling and meta analysis have been provided as well The new edition while recognizing the limits of each research method retains its emphasis on the importance of observations that may be repeated and checked by other researchers It treats the reader as a key actor who can advance knowledge by cross checking observations and interpretations SCIENCE SCALED SCORE PROGRESS TESTS AND TOPIC TESTS - YEAR 1 JOE. Start funding to identify the program s effects on health and schooling In 1965 the Office of Economic Opportunity OEO provided technical assistance to the 300 poorest counties in the U S to develop Head Start funding proposals The result was a large and lasting discontinuity in Head Start funding rates at the OEO cutoff for grant writing assistance but no discontinuity in other forms of federal social spending We find evidence of a large negative discontinuity at the OEO cutoff in mortality rates for children ages 5 9 from causes that could be affected by Head Start but not for other mortality causes or birth cohorts that should not be affected by the program We also find suggestive evidence for a positive effect of Head Start on educational attainment in both the 1990 Census concentrated among those cohorts born late enough to have been exposed to the program and among respondents in the National Education Longitudinal Study of 1988
