

HOW TO READ A SAFETY DATA SHEET

OSHA Brief

The most current version of Standardized SDS (SDS-09-09-2012-0001, Revision 2012, released 2012), known as the chemical safety data sheet (SDS), is the most accurate and reliable source of hazard information available. SDSs are developed by the manufacturer, importer, or distributor of the chemical and are intended to provide information on the safe handling, use, and disposal of the chemical. SDSs are intended to be used by workers, employers, and emergency responders to quickly assess the hazards of a chemical and determine appropriate protective measures.

The SDS includes information such as the properties of each chemical; their physical, health, and environmental health hazards; protective measures; and safety precautions for handling, storage, and disposal. The information in the SDS must be accurate and up-to-date. SDSs must also include hazard statements and hazard codes, which are hazard statements and hazard codes developed by the International Organization for Standardization (ISO) and the European Chemicals Agency (ECHA).

Readers of the SDS should use the following sections to quickly assess the hazard information. These sections are numbered 1 through 16, and each section provides general information about the chemical, identification, hazards, composition, safe handling practices, and emergency control measures. This information should be helpful in those that must use the chemical. The following sections are numbered 1 through 16, and each section provides specific hazard information, such as physical and health hazards, stability and reactivity information, toxicological information, exposure (personal) information, and other information including the class of transportation or hazard category. The SDS must also state that any hazard information is based on the properties of the chemical and not residual information for any required hazard class.

The SDS must also specify Sections 13 through 16, or the equivalent, with the following information: identification of the manufacturer or distributor, hazard classification, and labeling of chemicals (GHS), test codes, and contact information for the content of these sections when they become available, including recommendations for any required hazard class.

Section 1: Identification

- Use of personal protective equipment (such as removal of respirator or protective clothing).
- Contamination and protection measures to prevent the contamination of soils, water, and vegetation.
- Emergency procedures, including instructions for evacuation, protecting against fire, and other emergency procedures.
- Methods for cleaning up.
- Chemical procedures to prevent health risks for recovery, decontamination, cleanup, or recovering absorbed materials, and/or equipment required for containment/clean up.

Section 7: Handling and Storage

THIS SECTION PROVIDES INFORMATION ON THE SAFE HANDLING PRACTICES AND CONDITIONS FOR HANDLING OF CHEMICALS.

- Precautions for safe handling, including the conditions for handling (including physical, chemical, and biological properties), and protection (such as personal protective equipment (e.g., cooling, training, and consulting on health effects in prohibited).
- Recommendations on the conditions for safe storage, including any incompatible materials.
- Provide advice on specific storage requirements (e.g., separation requirements).

Section 8: Exposure Controls/Personal Protection

THIS SECTION INDICATES THE EXPOSURE LIMITS, ENGINEERING CONTROLS, AND PERSONAL PROTECTIVE MEASURES THAT ARE USED TO MINIMIZE WORKER EXPOSURE.

- Occupational Exposure Limits (OELs), Threshold Limit Values (TLVs), and any other exposure limit used or recommended by the chemical manufacturer, importer, or distributor preparing the safety data sheet, where available.
- Engineering controls (e.g., use local exhaust ventilation, or use spray booth).
- Recommendations on personal protective measures to prevent illness or injury from exposure (e.g., protective clothing, respiratory protection, and other protection required to prevent health effects).
- Any special instructions for PPE, protection clothing, or respirators (e.g., type of glove materials, such as PVC, or nitrocellulose gloves, and how to remove one of the glove materials).
